

St. Luke's Charity was founded in 1872 and operates under the patronage of the Church of Ireland. It provides nursing, healthcare and outreach services for the benefit of the community. Its subsidiary, St. Luke's Home, operates a 128-bed, long-stay nursing home on the shores of Loughmahon in Cork. This provides long-term residential care and day care services for older people including a Dementia specific unit. The Charity also runs a dedicated Education and Research Centre (Northridge House) which offers support to the healthcare sector generally. In addition, St. Luke's Charity Foundation raises funds to enhance the services provided. The Organisation employs more than 160 staff.
